Weatherproof material

HamacTex® is a polypropylene fibre developed for the special requirements of a hammock fabric. It is surprisingly similar to cotton in look and touch, weatherproof and fast-drying. Hamac Tex® is also known for its resistance to weathering as well as for its colour fastness.

Spreader bar made of Shorea wood

Thanks to its exceptionally high gross density, Shorea wood, which is mainly cultivated in Southeast Asia, is extremely robust. It is weatherproof and can be left outside for years without hesitation.

Padded surface

The padded surface increases lying comfort and protects from cooling.

High number of suspension cords

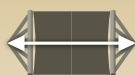

Additional comfort thanks to a multitude of suspension cords that distribute the weight equally to the cloth of the hammock and hence give a unique feeling of agravity.
